Digging Into Spring

First Mini Gardening Symposium

This year, the Northern Virginia chapter of the Azalea Society of America is spearheading what we hope will become an annual event inspiring new interest in gardening especially in younger folks. On March 18, 1-3 PM, we are planning to have a free two-hour mini gardening symposium, Digging into Spring, at Kirkwood Presbyterian Church in West Springfield with multiple presentations by a variety of gardening organizations.

We are working in collaboration with members of the American Rhododendron Society, Green Springs Master Gardeners, American Hemerocallis Society, American Hosta Society, and Meadowlark Gardens. We have ten adult presentations and a children's program. You are encouraged to bring children/grandchildren to this event. Snacks will be available. Listed below are the presenters and the topics for the adult program.

The children's program will be an hour long and is focused at children age six and above. It will run two times and can accommodate 20 children in each session. The children will be creating Ziplock bag seed and root viewers, designing a garden of their own, and creating a miniature garden. Jules Maloney from Meadowlark Gardens and Susan Hedrick from ASA and the American Hosta Society will be assisting the Kirkwoods and Nanneys with the children's projects. Children must preregister so we are certain we have enough spaces and supplies for them. Registration is through SignUp at <http://signup.com/go/m7BTv7> in case you have someone you think would love this program. Children must be participating in the program or under the supervision of an adult.

We hope you will come join us on March 18. You will have a variety of presentations to choose from. You are welcome to preregister for your preferred adult sessions (at the above link) which will help us determine which rooms should house the more popular topics.

President's Message

I had thought spring had sprung last November when temperatures around here tipped over 70. Come December, we had more 50 and 60 degree temperatures. The trees were confused and we had a few branches of Cherry blossoms that burst out. Now here in February, I am wondering if this was the winter that wasn't. Hopefully, Mother Nature will not burst out with some unpleasant surprise storms that will knock out the spring bulbs and blossoms.

We have a lot of activities coming up beginning with our First Mini gardening symposium, Digging into Spring, on March 18. I hope we will have lots of members come support this new effort. We can use help in making it a good experience for newer gardeners. (see the article for details) Just twelve days later, we begin our convention in Louisiana. It's not quite as convenient as last year's here in Virginia, but I expect I will see a few of our chapter members there.

Come Sunday, April 9, from 1 to 4:00 PM, we will be at Kirkwood Presbyterian for our spring meeting. Continuing in our tradition, we would love for our members to bring the snacks. If your last name begins with A-L, please bring something to share for our spring meeting. Names beginning with M-Z should bring something for the fall meeting in October. Consider inviting a friend or new neighbor to one of our meetings so we can keep growing and refreshing our membership.

Details on the topic are still being worked out and will be in our March Clipper.

White's Nursery Events

White's Nursery would like to invite plant societies, garden clubs and plant lovers for two fun events this spring. These two events will be held on the following dates:

Saturday, April 29 9 am to 5 pm - Early Spring - White's Nursery Open House This event will showcase the earlier blooming azaleas (deciduous and evergreen) and rhododendrons

Sunday, May 21 9 am to 5 pm - Late Bloomers Sale at White's Nursery This event provides an opportunity to enjoy later blooming azaleas and rhododendron

Enjoy an afternoon mingling with other plant lovers while taking a leisurely stroll admiring the many varieties of azaleas and rhododendrons in our greenhouses. This year our evergreen azalea inventory has grown to over 300 varieties. We also carry one of the largest collection of deciduous and native azaleas. Bring your cameras for some great photographs. The blooms are always amazing!
